Leading Delaware Unions Team With Project Washington

Project Washington enters into a Project Labor Agreement (PLA) with 20 labor unions local to Delaware

XXXXXX, DE — Project Washington has entered into a Project Labor Agreement (PLA) with 20 labor unions that are local to Delaware.

Among those participating include the State Building and Construction Trades Council of Delaware, and all twenty local unions, who collectively represent over 4,800 union members. The agreement was signed on October 22, 2025, in Philadelphia, PA and is effective October 23, 2025.

This agreement solidifies Project Washington's commitment to working alongside high-skilled, local, and organized trade members throughout the construction of its campus.

Jim Maravelias, President of the Delaware Building & Construction Trades Council stated, "Today marks the beginning of a long journey ahead for the workers of Delaware."

Project Washington is estimated to bring 3,500 construction jobs, nearly $10 billion of economic development, and over $2.5B in labor wages during the construction period."

Rory Pillsbury from the Project Washington team stated, "We are proud of our partnership with labor and the trades, but this is just the first step for us. This agreement affirms the Project's commitment to local labor, and we look forward to getting to work and bringing economic benefits to all residents of Delaware."
